

Environmental Experts Featured At Great Swamp's Gala

Florham Park, NJ
Thursday, October 24, 2024

Guests were immersed in an evening of environmental exploration at the Great Swamp Watershed Association's (GSWA) annual gala Thursday, October 24 at Brooklake Country Club, Florham Park, NJ.

event's discussion topics ranged from native gardening and environmental art to sustainable farming, and local history.

Beth also provided support as a gala silent auction donor. Her donation of a two hour private garden consultation contributed to the success of GSWA's most important fundraiser of the year.

The gala's generous donors help GSWA continue their important work to protect and improve the health of the Passaic River through science, education, land preservation and stewardship, and advocacy.

To learn more, please visit GreatSwamp.org

Beth with Wade Kirby, GSWA Director of Development

Themed "A Green Gathering" the event featured nearly 40 environmental experts who engaged with guests throughout the evening. Beth Riley, owner of The Potted Garden was one of the discussion leaders, who spoke specifically about native plant materials in design and the importance of creating pollinator corridors. The

Beth pictured with Ian MacCallum, GSWA Board of Trustees and David Riley

